

Getting started and mainstreaming low-emission development

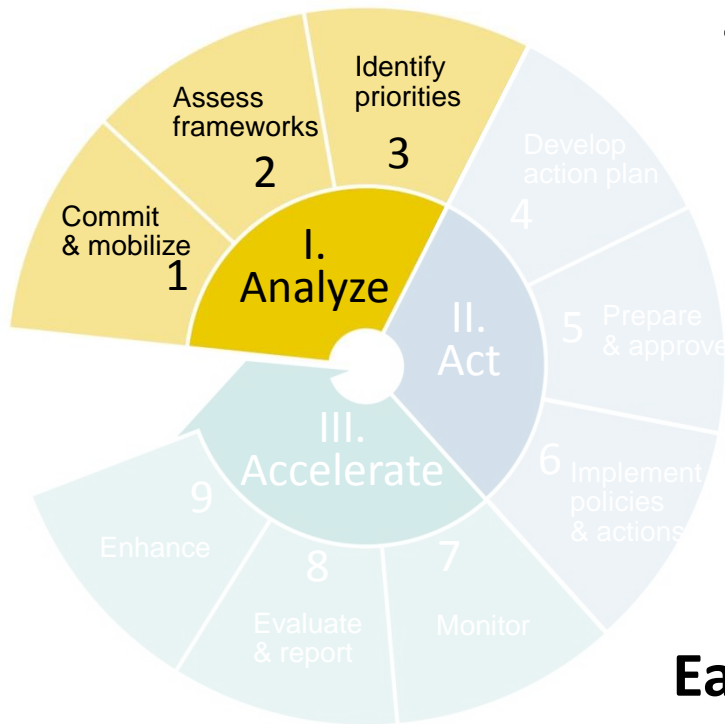

GreenClimateCities program

ICLEI's GCC methodology helps Local Governments create an institutional framework for Low-Emission urban development

I. Analyze

- Generate knowledge base to support:
 - Evidence-based decision making
 - Development of sound feasibility studies and project design

Each city is unique. Feasibility studies in the local context are necessary prior to implementation of technical/ technological projects to ensure success.

I. Analyze

- Key outputs of this phase include:

- Governance:

- Political commitment to process
- Taskforce creation and resourcing
- Stakeholder engagement

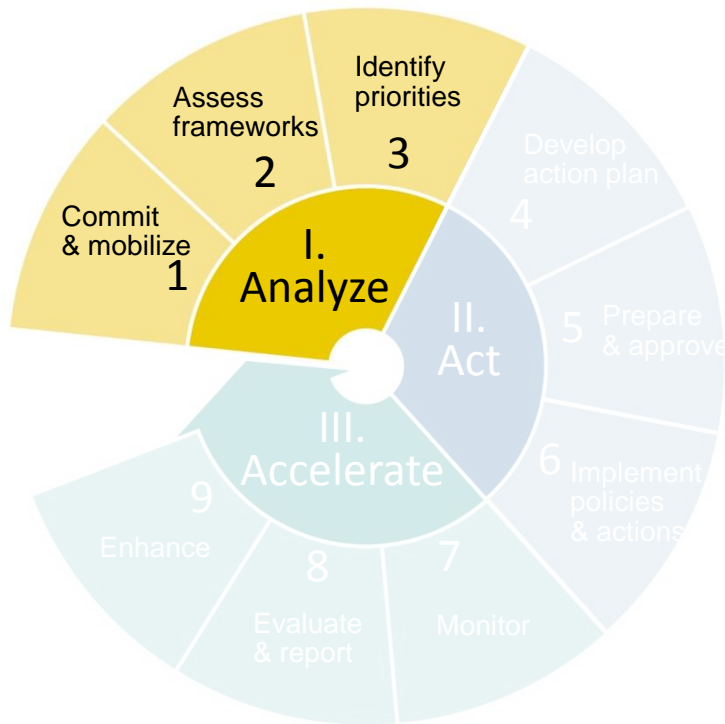

- Detailed country profile:

- Key indicators
- Governance structure
- Climate action framework

- Detailed city profile:

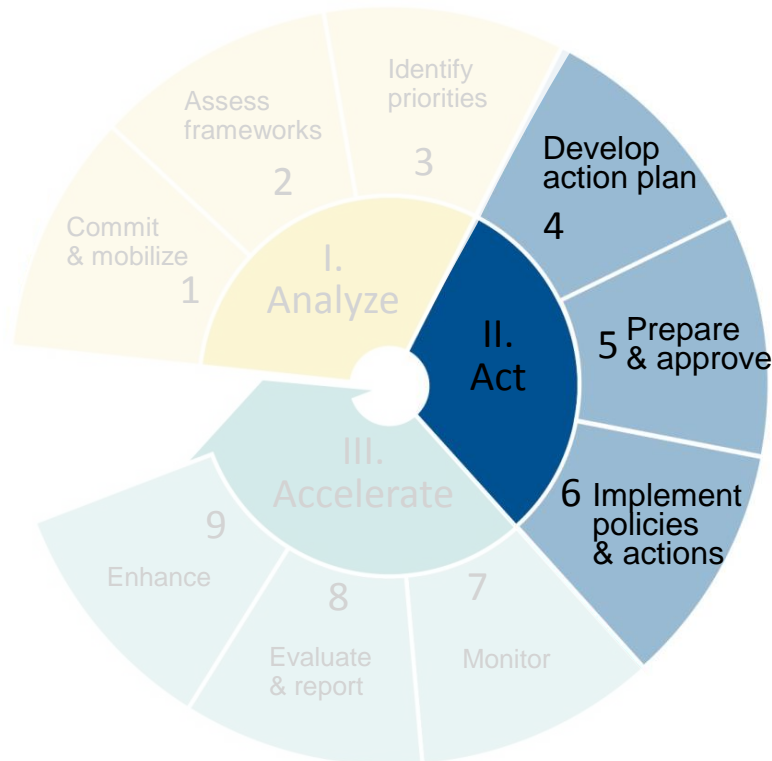

- Service levels of urban infrastructure
- Energy production and consumption
- GHG emissions inventory
- LG's mandates and capabilities

- Baseline assessment and business-as-usual projection
